Bridge the Continental Divide

The 2008 NAEOP Conference and Institute will be held in July 7 – 12, 2008 in Broomfield
(close to Denver), Colorado at the Omni

Interlocken Resort. It is a fabulous place to stay!

The Continental Divide is the “backbone” of a continent. It is a name that designates the whole Rocky Mountain system, especially the high, rugged ranges which presented an almost impenetrable barrier to westbound explorers and settlers.

If you have never experienced a National Conference, this might be the time to consider it! It is a wonderful opportunity for professional growth, for making new friends, sharing good times with current friendships and for receiving your PSP award. It is within driving distance, so sharing car ride & expenses would be a bonus!

If you are considering going, email me at jkleager@lps.org for more information. I am compiling a list and will share that list with those interested. There are already quite a few NEOPA members planning on traveling to Colorado, so join in the fun!

I'll guarantee you will have a great time! Pack your sunscreen, grab a bottle of water, and let's head for the mountains in July!
